

YALE LAW SCHOOL CLINICAL FELLOWSHIP
CRIMINAL LEGAL SYSTEM ADVOCACY

Yale Law School seeks applications for a clinical fellowship in the Jerome N. Frank Legal Services Organization, within Yale Law School's clinical program. This is a two-year position, with a third-year option, ideally beginning on May 1, 2024. It is designed for lawyers with at least five years of practice who are considering a career in law school teaching.

The fellow will work across clinics focused on criminal legal system advocacy, including criminal defense, post-conviction, parole revocation defense, excessive sentencing, prison legal services, and policy advocacy.

The fellow's responsibilities include representing clients, supervising students, assisting in teaching classes, and pursuing a scholarship agenda. In addition, the fellow may be asked to co-teach a section of a six-week fall program for first-year students, Introduction to Legal Analysis and Writing. Candidates must be prepared to apply for admission to the Connecticut bar. (Candidates with five years of practice experience may qualify for admission without examination.)

All work will be conducted with the support of the clinical faculty, and will focus on providing legal assistance to low-income clients and organizations working on criminal legal reform and adjacent issues.

The principal supervisors for the position will be Professors Fiona Doherty and Miriam Gohara.

The Jerome N. Frank Legal Services Organization is committed to building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty and staff committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment. Candidates must be able to work both independently and as part of a team, and must possess strong written and oral communication skills. Experience in creative and community driven advocacy is a strong plus. Annual salary is commensurate with experience. Fellows receive health benefits and access to university facilities.

Email a resume, cover letter, writing sample, law school transcript, and names, addresses and telephone numbers of three references to clinical.fellow@yale.edu. Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis until March 1, 2024. Early applications are encouraged.

Questions may be directed to Denise Santaella at (203) 432-4800.
