

THE JUSTICE COLLABORATORY

YALE LAW SCHOOL

Policy Plan for Policing in America Released Today

Re-Imagining Public Safety: Prevent Harm and Lead with the Truth

Today the Justice Collaboratory, in a joint effort with Center for Policing Equity, released a report calling for a new conversation about police reform in America. Re-imagining Public Safety: Prevent Harm and Lead with the Truth focuses on advancing policing through strategies backed by science and experience. It is being released in advance of the 2020 Presidential Election with the goal of making these important concepts part of the ongoing national dialogue.

The action plan focuses on four core principles — safety, dignity, parsimony, and equity. Under that framework, the authors detail five actionable steps they believe should lead the charge towards re-imagining public safety.

- ◆ Law enforcement setting a new standard that focuses on building public trust.
- ◆ Federal Government facilitating the culture change by incentivizing procedural justice programs.
- ◆ Law enforcement agencies measuring and managing police behavior through data.
- ◆ Law enforcement and communities coming together to reconcile past harms.
- ◆ Creation of a National Review Board framework to address negative policing events.

The report was authored by our Yale Law School faculty co-founders - Tracey Meares, Walton Hale Hamilton Professor of Law and Tom Tyler, Macklin Fleming Professor of Law and Professor of Psychology. The Justice Collaboratory Executive Director Caroline Nobo Sarnoff; and JC members Elizabeth Hinton, Harvard Professor of History and of African and African American Studies; and Phillip Atiba Goff, President of the Center for Policing Equity and Franklin A. Thomas Professorship in Policing Equity, John Jay College.

Visit us on Twitter @JCollaboratory to find out more.

The Justice Collaboratory brings together scholars and researchers of diverse theoretical and methodological orientations at Yale University and elsewhere to work on issues related to institutional reform and policy innovation and advancement. It infuses theory and empirical research in order to achieve its goal of making the components of criminal justice operation simultaneously more effective, just, and democratic.

Share this email:

Manage your preferences | Opt out using TrueRemove™

Got this as a forward? Sign up to receive our future emails.

View this email online.

127 Wall Street
New Haven, CT | 06520 US

This email was sent to .
To continue receiving our emails, add us to your address book.

emma®