

The Structural Silos of Carceral Health Care: Patient-Prisoners' Rights and Wellbeing

Wednesday, February 21, 2024
12:10 - 1 p.m.

This panel explores the quality of care from incarceration through supervised release and thereafter. Panelists will discuss the lack of regulatory oversight, the role correctional officials play in shaping the services, delivery, and experiences of treatment in detention, and the constitutional and statutory obligations to provide care to incarcerated people.

Panelists

Elizabeth Clarke, Curtis-Liman Fellow,
Federal Defenders Office for the District of CT, and Yale Law School

Jaimie Meyer, Associate Professor, Yale School of Medicine

Angel Sanchez, YLS LLM '24

Kathryn Thomas, Post-Doctoral Fellow,
The Justice Collaboratory and SEICHE Center for Health and Justice

Moderator: Pardiss Kebriaei, Senior Liman Fellow in Residence

Yale Sterling Law School, Room 128. Non-pizza lunch provided.

To attend in person or for Zoom link RSVP by February 19 to

D. Nicole Gehring at denise.gehring@yale.edu.

For information, contact Elizabeth Clarke at elizabeth.clarke@yale.edu.

Co-Sponsored by
Solomon Center for Health Law & Policy and Law and Racial Justice Center