The Nature of Power: Energy Production and Environmental Policy in China

Industrialization in China has come at a steep environmental cost. What has led to this moment? Who are the actors involved? What does the future hold? Join us for a discussion on energy development and environmental policy in China with Victor Seow, Assistant Professor of the History of Science at Harvard University and author of Carbon Technocracy, and Zhao Zhong, founder and director of the first environmental NGO in northwestern China. Discussion moderated by Yangyang Cheng.
