Embodying Social Injustice: Why Past and Present Structural Racism Matters for Health and Justice Today

NANCY KRIEGER, PhD
PROFESSOR OF SOCIAL EPIDEMIOLOGY
HARVARD T.H. CHAN SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Krieger will discuss how health inequities in the US reflect how people biologically embody structural injustice and will consider the ongoing health impacts of the socially inherited histories of Jim Crow and racialized economic segregation.

Monday December 3, 2018 4:30–6:00 pm
Yale Law School Room 120 127 Wall Street

Reception to follow
Alumni Reading Room